"In the Olde Days"

Remember how cold the water felt in February when you had to take your Red Cross Life Saving Courses in the pool? Memories of shivering bodies covered with goose bumps standing with toes curled and a towel cascading from a wet head, waiting for the next drill. "Do I really need life saving, sir?"

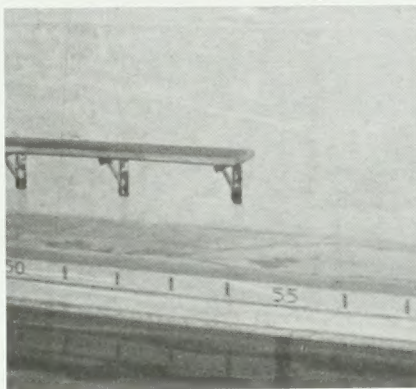

"Hoary" Kendall would be standing at pool side with his bald head reflecting the light coming through the glass panels in the roof. His countenance was one of good humour, mustache trimmed, eyes twinkling at the prospect of the upcoming ordeal. During the winter he wore a sleeveless V-neck sweater, grey flannels and the ever present bow tie. He never appeared in a bathing suit but was always content to direct his reluctant pupils from behind the line. "I am afraid you will have to do that again, Trent, your stroke is poor."

Forty years ago competitive swimming was just emerging as an international sport, particularly at the Olympics. Names like the Australian crawl, butterfly, breast stroke and dolphin kick were hardly on everyone's lips. With the onset of technology, whereby water could be filtered and the PH balance maintained so that the pool did not turn into a swamp overnight, the attraction of indoor swimming for recreation and competition grew.

It was not a spectator sport in the olde days.

What with the high humidity and heat generated by the water and every noise echoing off bare walls and ceilings, splashing water everywhere and lack of any regular sitting areas meant that most people were content to learn the water's

second-hand the results of the day's events.

At St. Andrew's, memories of chlorinated laden zepthers wafting through the air as you approached the basement showers in Dunlap Hall were enough to discourage most interested aspirants. Few tried out for swimming unless they already had a demonstrated talent, and those that succeeded were a close knit group. "Weights at 2:30 pm and then into the pool until dinner." Once on the team, swimmers had other technical and bureaucratic factors to overcome. Bleary eyed from three or more hours of laps and time trials, the sportsmen would head for the special dinner table where foods conducive to swimmers were served. Studies at night were often performed through a chlorine induced haze. Sleep came exactly one second after hitting the pillow. It did not matter that some roomates, such as Harry Yuill, stayed up past curfew, reading tomes like "Variety", the swimmers were, "dead to the world". As a result high jinks after lights out were often forfeited, missing a 'six-of-the-best' caning by the Gibber. "This will hurt me more than it does you, Morse. Now bend over."

Swimming in the past was thought of, in some quarters at S.A.C., as a "minor" sport. Even though more time was spent in training than most other endeavours, it did not rank with the 'big' sports, football and hockey.

Despite these handicaps, swimming at SAC has prospered because it offers physical development in a competitive environment. It is healthy and represents a non-contact sport that keeps one's knees and back for future years. It also represents the development of the individual physically and mentally. As with any individual sport, it is the athlete against himself first, and his competitors second.

In the olde days sailors in the British Navy prided themselves on not being able to swim. They reasoned that if they were cast overboard, or victims of a sinking in cold water, they would "go quicker". We are a different breed today, swimming is enjoyable and refreshing, well worth pursuing for everyone. Few of us will ever go down to the sea, professionally.

For the boys at St. Andrew's, swimming represents an increasingly important major sport and one which helps raise the standards of fitness for every boy at the school.

Headmaster's Column Something Different

This is not philosophy, there is no message, no moral in this article. It is just the story of a young old boy - in his own words.

For the past few years, I've corresponded with a former student - one of those Andreans who kept a low profile while at SAC, but who took me seriously when I wrote on his last report: "Keep in touch".

The identity of my pen pal will be protected here - yet it might be of interest to share with you the joys I've derived from this unique relationship.

While in France - during his grade 11 year, I received 'Jos' first missive. It was a postcard depicting a scene in Paris - or more precisely a girl au déshabillée. The card said: "Hi. Oh, is this what France is supposed to look like? I'd send you one of the Eiffel Tower, but I just can't seem to find a postcard of it anywhere. Anyway, I figured, nahh, you don't want to see that. Do you? Aren't you glad I mailed this in an envelope? There is none of this in Riom, you know. There isn't anything in Riom, matter of fact. And you know me, I'm never one to complain. J'ai aller, perfect French, wasn't that."

Just after graduation - during which 'Jos' received the Errington Award for meritorial services - I received a thank you letter, soon followed by another - excerpts of which are reproduced here.

"Hi. This is 'Jos', again. How are you? Pretty bon, right? I hope so. I was just up at Harvard Summer School yesterday. It's the most beautiful school and place I have ever seen.... their facilities, faculty and spirit seem unequalled. But their dorms are such a mess! St. Andrew's were much better. They said however in their newspaper, "Don't complain about the dorms. Teddy Roosevelt and Aga Khan didn't!".... I have never seen so many 'preps' and Lacoste shirts in all my life. Every girl looked like a 'Buffy' and every boy like a 'Chip'.

If you've noticed, everything I've written about Harvard is in the passé composé. Right? That's because I'm no longer there.... I worked so hard this year to do well. And who picked up the achievement prize for Lower Six in the end?.... Mr. Stuart said to me when I went up to get it "Hold on 'Jos', I think there's been some sort of mistake!...."

So now I'm trying for a Summer Session at Columbia University.... they need a letter of recommendation from the Headmaster of the school. In that case, sir, 'Can you write me one?' Come on, you know I'm a good guy. You just have to tell them that....

I hear you are going on vacation in July.... Florida, again? If you're in the sun, don't tan too much. People tell me it's bad. And your nose peels very easily, remember?"

Six months later, I received the following. "Haro. This is 'Jos' (whether or not you like it!).... I am just writing to say hi, and oh, by the way.... something I just remembered! Could you do moi a small favor? Bien course, right? I hope that's what you're thinking. Thank you very much.

Remember when you were down in New York having the time of your life? While we were eating lunch? Talking about school? Well, remember how I said that although I dearly and truly loved NYU, if I ended spending my university years there I wouldddd ggggo cccrazy?.... No one wants to learn it seems, they only want to 'Hey pass man'. Ugh."

Our friend 'Jos' is not without ambition. He's also enterprising. So it wasn't a surprise to receive a card from Harvard: "You will never guess ou je suis! Well I'm at Harvard studying the civilization of Quebec. And no one thought I had any brains, right? So much for deceptive appearances."

And October brought this one: "Well, Mr. B., you know, it's that time of year again when.... Well, as you can see, this blue thing I've enclosed is not my newest stationery... So, it must be one of those college application transfer forms that I have this bad habit of sending you.

You know, I really wouldn't have bothered you, but I hope you can fill it out. It's just that, well you know, with your last letter and all your talk of Jean-Paul, (I presume he meant the Pope) I decided that I really want to do something useful with my life, but only if I could do it in an Ivy League school. (St. Andrew's did that to me.) I've gotten to like NYU, but I have not come to love it. And if God and Jean-Paul are on my side, then with any luck I still have a chance to transfer.

.... Oh, you want to know something funny? I'm taking Chemistry here. In the past 4 weeks, none of my experiments have been coming out right. I thought for sure that I was either a real yutz or that all the equipment was broken. I found out that I was turning the wrong button on the scale the wrong way. DuLLL! Right? So much for my scientific intuition. Hmm, maybe it wasn't that funny!"

I was now quite interested in 'Jos' academic life. I didn't have to wait long for the next instalment: "You better not be thinking, 'Oh no... It's much too early in the New Year to be hearing from him again.' Come on, I know what's going on in your mind; I took Intro Psychology 101!

Well, I'm just writing to say haro (as usual) and to say merci. Guess what? I finally got into Columbia....

You know I have to take deux years of a language there. I told them que je peut (sic) parler français très bien déjà, but they just told me to tai (sic) toi.

.... Well anyway Mr. B., je got to étudier...."

Since that letter, there have been many others - all as light and interesting. 'Jos' has now completed 2 years of post-university work and has just been accepted at Stanford University for his M.B.A.

Who said the life of a teacher was boring and monotonous?

Prize Day Valedictory Values and Traditions

Mr. Chairman, members of the Board of Governors, Mr. Headmaster, members of the faculty, guests and fellow students.

It is indeed a privilege and an honour to stand before you today and speak on behalf of the 1989 Graduating Class.

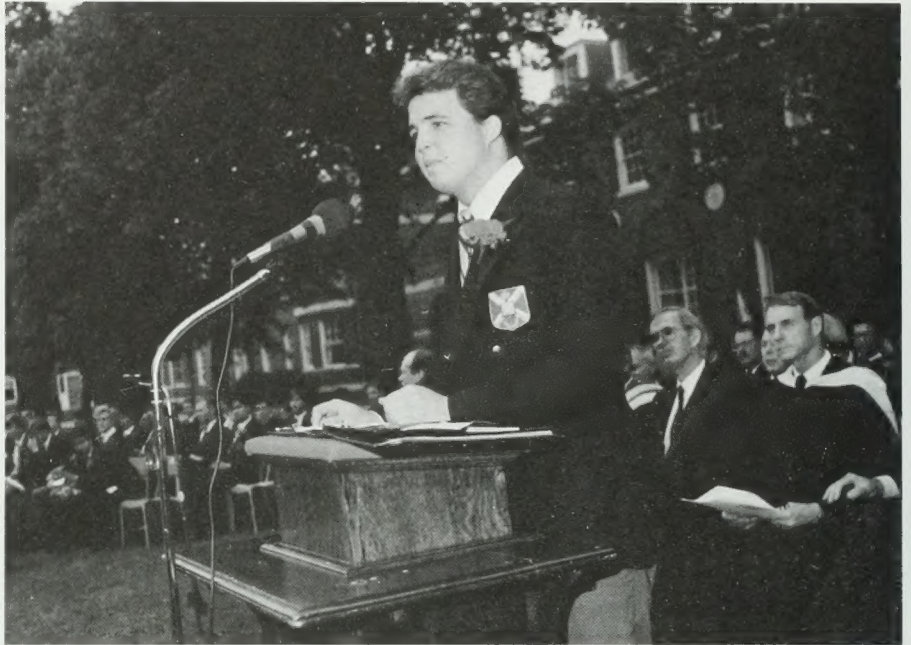

This year has finally drawn to an end and another batch of Andreans is being thrust into society. We who are leaving S.A.C. today will no doubt be facing great changes in our personal lives just as the world is changing before us, even as I speak.

Two new words have crept into our language in the past 18 months; Glasnost and Perestroika!

China, representing 20% of the world population, is on the brink of civil war. The Ayatolla Khomeini is dead. Solidarity just won the election in Poland. Canada and its neighbour to the south have recently sealed a pact which will make them the largest trading block in the world.

We, the graduates of St. Andrew's College, are the leaders of tomorrow. As such, it is our responsibility and our duty to study and understand our changing world. The world that we will command will bear little resemblance to the world of our parents. Judging by the events of today, we have an awesome task in front of us!

How, you may ask, will we prepare for the future? The next step in the educational process, university, is definitely part of the answer. Future changes that face us will come from advancements in technology and science. An understanding of the social sciences and the humanities will be critical.

However, we have a head start on the wonderful journey of life. In this world of constant change, we have been tempered by the unwaivering values and traditions that are St. Andrew's College. May these never change!

I come from a small island nation, The Bahamas, which through the years has sent more than 60 students to S.A.C. I feel that I am also representing them here today. They have all made their own individual contribution to my country.

In my capacity as your Head Prefect, I have had the opportunity to meet and to know many S.A.C. alumni, young and old, and I have yet to meet a St. Andrew's man with whom I would not be proud to be associated.

To the undergraduates, we can confirm that participation in some, or all, of the programs available to you here at S.A.C., is tremendously important and is an essential part of your school life. For those who are not inclined to participate as much as others, do not despair. Just by being here and attending S.A.C., one is strengthened by the friendships, the associations and the entire atmosphere that is S.A.C. The old axiom holds true; the more that you put into this community, the more you will take with you when you leave.

A great wit once said that "if it were not for our parents, we wouldn't be here". Well, I suppose there is some biological truth to that statement. Although when I asked Mr. West in grade nine health, I did receive a somewhat vague answer. Leaving that aside, however, I suggest that if it were not for our parents, we would not be here at S.A.C. Some of you dads here today were fortunate enough to attend this school. You knew of the experience that awaited your son. Others, like my dad had to go by recommendation and a lot of faith. In my own case, and I am confident that I speak for the entire student population, I would like to say a simple thank you dad, thank you mom, for affording me the finest all-round education possible today. Thank you for giving me the opportunity of attending St. Andrew's College.

Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to recognize the unheralded heroes of S.A.C. - the faculty and staff. Without their interest, their concern, support, patience and understanding, we could not be where we are today and would not have the most beautiful campus that many have ever seen. There are none finer than these people and we appreciate all they have done for us.

The year 1988-89, for me, will stand out as certainly the best year of my life. It has been an honour to serve as your Head Prefect and I thank all the students and faculty for giving me this opportunity. To my fellow prefects, it has been a great year and I thank you for your support and dedication to the job. As a group, St. Andrew's will miss you!

Finally, I would like to thank all those who have gone before, who have sat here on prize day in years gone by. I thank them for maintaining and protecting the traditions that have made this school the great Canadian institution that is today. S.A.C. will always be part of each and every one of us who are graduating today.

As we go now, I hope we will never forget our strong school motto "Quit Ye Like Men, Be Strong." We came here as boys; we leave here as men. But not just ordinary men, we leave as St. Andrew's men.

The Choral Tradition

Musical Notes and Comments

When browsing through back issues of the Review, it is notable that choral music figures prominently in the development of our strong musical traditions. There have been many talented men who have successfully developed the love of singing among generations of Andreans.

The strength of any programme is largely due to the interests of those at the top. Nowhere is this truer than at St. Andrew's College where each of our headmasters has made a strong effort to encourage the development of both singing and other musical activities.

Beginning in the 1930's Dr. Macdonald selected Mr. W. Crookshank and Mr. J.Y.S. Ross to plant the seed. A Glee Club was formed and special training was given to treble voices. Among the first pieces attempted were two choruses from Handel's 'Messiah'. No mention was made of how successful the performances of these ambitious selections were, but it is hinted that rehearsals were a bit tedious.

Dr. Ketchum arrived and immediately threw himself into the task of keeping the school singing. He initiated St. Andrew's first Carol Service in 1934 and personally trained the boys for it. Since then the school has celebrated this event annually with pride.

It was Dr. David Ouchterlony to whom Dr. Ketchum passed the torch in 1939. Ouchterlony continued to divide the school into cantors and trebles and to train them to sing harmony and descant parts. The Carol Service, then held in the College Chapel was broadcast over Toronto radio stations in 1941 and 1942. The school won the prestigious Carnegie Music award in 1943, indicating Ouchterlony's success.

Mr. Ian Galliford and Mr. G.B. Gibson followed Dr. Ouchterlony. Their tenure saw the birth of the Aurora Music Club, in whose concerts St. Andrew's boys sang. A Treble Choir was also robed for the first time in 1945.

Mr. John Bradley succeeded Gibson in 1951. Over the following thirteen years, he was to resurrect the Glee Club, begin the tradition of performing school musicals, learn to play the bagpipes, win 12 First Prizes at Toronto's famous Kiwanis Music Festival with his renowned Treble Choirs, and record two LPs which featured the Carol Service! Following the CBC television broadcast of the 1954 Carol Service, Bradley took his superbly trained trebles to New York City to represent Canada in a Choral Evensong at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine sponsored by the Royal School of Church Music.

Dr. Coulter called upon Dr. J.A. 'Tony' Dawson to carry on the tradition. Dawson maintained a treble section and introduced senior boys to sing tenor and bass harmonies. Several inter-school music concerts were organized and our boys performed with other musicians from Hillfield-Strathallan College, U.C.C., and St. George's College. This was a fore-runner to the current and highly successful Independent Schools Music Festival held annually at Roy Thomson Hall.

Mr. Julian Greenwood took the helm and, together with Mr. Bob Jones, continued to encourage the continuation of choral and other musical pursuits at every level of the school.

With the arrival of Mr. John Clements and Mr. Aubrey Foy, Dr. Hockin ensured the further success of the Carol Service and saw the blossoming of the School Musical. Both events still grow in popularity and quality.

Currently, Mr. Bob Bedard continues to oversee a successful music programme. Under his guidance, the school still produces a fine Treble Choir and has the ability to produce senior singers for harmony parts. The Choir is once again robed in bright red cassocks and white surplices, thanks to the Lloyd C. MacPherson Memorial Fund, and it is once again winning awards. Our choir won First Prize at the 1989 Lion's Music Festival in the Treble Choir category.

It is hoped that we will do this lineage proud as we continue the choral tradition at St. Andrew's College.

Judge Robert W. Meagher, S.A.C. 1972-87, was a great speaker at this year's Old Boys' Annual Dinner. He was introduced by Robin Fraser, S.A.C. staff 1982-86, who traced Bob's career for the 300 in attendance. Bob's speech was the highlight of the event and ended with a thunderous standing ovation. At times witty and at times moving, Bob compared the St. Andrew's of to-day with the mosaic of Canadian society. John Middup '77, thanked Bob on behalf of the Association.

Special guests at this year's dinner included two most respected members of the staff of the school. Courtney Stoate, S.A.C. 1962-70, and Ken Ives, 1937-73, were head table guests.

Old Boys of all ages from all eras helped us celebrate our 90th birthday in fine fashion! Eight hundred and twenty-eight individuals donated $155,544, up from $141,955 the year earlier, a 9.6% increase. This is the sixth consecutive year that total income has increased. The average gift hit a new high of $187.85.

We were very pleased to see how many old boys enthusiastically took part in contributing $10 per year for each year since their graduating year.

Exciting news will be on its way to you soon with regard to our future plans at St. Andrew's!

Our Old Boys' Chairman, Charlie Edwards '70, and his group of 'year rep' volunteers are to be congratulated for their solid effort on behalf of the school.

Thanks also to Parent Giving Chairman Bob Bridel and his group of parent volunteers who planned and carried out this year's parent annual giving program.

In all, over one thousand donations were received in the annual program totalling $278,000, which was used for scholarships, bursaries, the final year of our furniture replacement program in the residences, and a variety of other projects.

In the following pages we list the donors to the school in the past financial year. Thank you to each and every one of you for your continuing support of St. Andrew's College.

90th Birthday Party Auction

The executive of the Ladies' Guild 1988-89

The soon-to-be remodelled conference room in Dunlap Hall is an example of the Ladies' Guild and S.A.C. Association working together to improve the college. Above, the executive of the Guild prepare the mailing of invitations to the 90th Birthday Party. Standing (l-r) President, Sonia Chin, Dinner Dance Chairman, Llyn Pady and incoming Guild President for 89-90, Ardene Mantrop.

The executive of the Ladies' Guild under the Presidency of Sonia Chin did a terrific job in organizing our 90th Birthday Party held at the Hilton International on April 29th. Event chairman Llyn Pady, mother of Ian '89, organized the committees and, with the help of the S.A.C. Association, the dance and auction made a profit of $84,000 for the scholarship and building funds. The Ladies' Guild has, for over fifty years, provided St. Andrew's with a most important resource - effective, enthusiastic volunteers. This year saw the introduction of new ideas and refinement of many programs the Guild has sponsored over the years. On behalf of the whole community of St. Andrew's, sincere thanks to Guild members and the executive who contribute their time so generously for S.A.C.

On behalf of St. Andrew's College

we would like to say

'Thank You'

for contributing to our very

March Break Rugby Tour

On March 10, 1989 we began our trip to England and Wales. Our departure was relatively smooth, however, one of our players left his passport at home! We arrived in London in the morning and picked up the buses which were to be used as transportation for the next ten days. We arrived at Whitgift School and slept for two hours on a concrete gym floor. We had our first practice together in ten months (on a grass field) and had to adjust to the larger area as we had trained in the school gym during the winter. After a hard session we met our billets and went to their homes.

March 11th

After hearing of everyone's reactions to British culture we went to the playing field for our first match. The game was hard fought with the Saints on the scoreboard first with an excellent penalty kick. We were very surprised with the accuracy and team work of our opposition. However, our inexperience showed, and this match became our first loss. We finished the day by watching a regional club rugby game and met later that night with the other team to "discuss" the day's match.

March 12th

We left for Bristol very sore and "tired" from the previous night's activities. We visited Oxford before meeting with our new billets. Again we met with the other team to "discuss" the next day's match. We learned some new rugby songs and gave a few of our own.

March 13th

We practiced in the morning after an assembly/chapel service very similar to our own. The weather was cold, a type of cold we had not yet experienced. The practice was a light one due to the day's game and strategy was discussed.

To honour the 90th anniversary of the school, the rugby touring team presented Jim Herder '64 with jersey #90.

March 14th

We left Bristol and travelled to the interesting town of Bath. We saw the ancient Roman baths with the natural hot springs and then we travelled into Wales and were welcomed with the Big Pit. We were taken down a dead mine shaft which in the end proved very interesting. As we travelled deeper into Wales it was very beautiful with large rolling hills on which we saw a man-made ski slope made with carpet. We arrived at the famous school of Monmouth, where some of our players were billeted, while others stayed in the dorms. The town was very small and historic and we periodically ran into each other. It rained throughout the day and there was fear that the match would not be played.

March 15th

We had a practice on the soaked field and then had an early lunch. The match at 2:45 became the biggest nightmare in my career. We were losing 42-0 at the half and as captain I had to be "inspiring" for my team mates. The final score became 51-0 and we made the following days newspaper! Although we were thrashed we enjoyed the local club game.

Peter Kalra '84, Jay Rosenfeld '86 and David Rolph '83 played for the Old Boys' rugby side against the school firsts in May.

March 16th

We awoke to snowy fields and were allowed to see the England national squad practice for the upcoming International against Wales. We then travelled to Christ College in Brecon. This school is most historic and its campus is incredible. Founded by Henry VIII in 1541, it has the oldest standing chapel in everyday use in England. We discovered that they have a student pub on campus where we enjoyed ourselves and thought we should also have one at St. Andrew's.

March 17th

The day began with a tour of the school followed by a light practice, with the aid of their coaches. The game was played in great weather in front of the whole school. As we ran onto the field we were greeted with cheers. The game was in my view the best game played. The opposition was known as one of the best rugby sides and we put up a proud fight. Toward the end of the match we found the crowd cheering for us, and an incredible solo effort by Rob Martin gave us a try to bolster our pride.

We also were able to visit the International ground and sang our national anthem there, which echoed throughout the stadium.

March 18th

The final day of the tour we left Christ College and went back to Cardiff to enjoy the activities that accompany the International. We then watched the match of a lifetime, the famous England/Wales rivalry. The singing and the atmosphere were unforgettable as Wales soundly beat England in the final International of the season.

The trip was a great experience and, on behalf of the students who participated, I would like to express thanks to our coaches and others who were involved in its organization.

Ted Harrison is retiring after 21 years of dedicated service to St. Andrew's College. For the past two years, Ted headed our French Department - but it will be for his 17 years as Housemaster of Macdonald House that he will be best remembered. There, with the assistance of his wife, Kathleen, he launched the school career of 1300 Andreans. His demanding standards were based on values of the highest quality, thus outlining a superior way of life in the everyday actions of our students. We thank you, Mr. Harrison, for your unflinching dedication and sense of fair play.

Old boys from the 50's onwards will recognize Nellie Rex who visited us on Inspection Day. Nellie is retired and living in Aurora and sends her love "to all those wonderful boys".

Seventeen years ago, Dr. Coulter extended to me the privilege of sharing the school secretary, Mary Lloyd, to help me in my duties as one of his assistants. Nine years later, upon my appointment as Headmaster, Mrs. Lloyd agreed to become my secretary and began a rewarding eight year association. Mary will be sorely missed.

In November of 1981, a lady with a distinct Southern accent joined us as a temporary replacement in the English department. She made such an impression on everyone that at the earliest opportunity we extended an invitation to her to become part of the Faculty of the College. We are saddened to hear of Nancy Hurley's decision to relocate in Western Canada. Nancy's contributions were varied, numerous and meaningful. It could safely be said that she exemplifies a Renaissance Woman.

It is an accepted fact that St. Andrew's College has been at the forefront of Computer Science teaching for the last two decades. The developments in this technological field demand constant vigilance, updated skills and superior knowledge. These attributes were present in one man who is leaving us after five most productive years. Under Reinhart Kranz' leadership the number of computers in the school has surpassed the 100 mark and, significantly, the majority of our masters have become pseudo-experts in that field. Furthermore, this past year, Mr. Kranz was the Commanding Officer of our Cadet Corps and any moment now we expect to hear that the Strathcona Cup will return to its rightful place.

In 1985 the school availed itself of the services of a catering firm. Its first manager - who became a friend to all and who greatly enhanced all aspects of the Dining Room - retired at the beginning of the March Break. We would like, at this time, to recognize Ernie Fireman and to thank him for improving the quality of life at St. Andrew's. Two years ago, we were fortunate in attracting Tony
